

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

As President of the EMCI (European Masters in Conference Interpreting), a consortium made of 15 institutions which share the same values of quality and employability, I am very pleased to read that Lviv University is about to launch a Master's course in interpreting which shares those values and which will be developed on the basis of the EMCI core curriculum.

Such a course which will train carefully selected students will contribute to a high-quality international communication in a highly sensitive context in which nuances and precision are key.

It will play an essential part in training conference interpreters who will be needed by the European Institutions not only when Ukraine becomes a member but already for the pre-accession negotiations.

The EMCI will be happy to support it as much as it can, starting by inviting Prof. Lytvniak to this year's Training of Trainers seminar in Paris.
